SCHEDULE B.

(See section 26.)

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

In September last the Government appointed a Committee to devise a scheme for the improvement of the City of Mysore, for reasons which were thus stated in their order :—

Government Order No. 4168-79-L. F. 36-02, dated 18th September 1902.

"It is unfortunate that the City of Mysore, notwithstanding the large sums spent upon it for improvements, should still be subject to outbreaks of plague each successive year. Government consider that nothing but sustained exertions for carrying out a carefully prepared programme of sanitary improvements can establish the health of the place. Congested portions should be opened up not simply by demolishing houses and sending the inhabitants adrift, but by devising suitable extensions and affording facilities for the building of houses. It is unlikely that the Municipality will be able to find all the money required for improving the City. But taking its general importance as the Capital of the State into consideration, His Highness the Maharaja considers that the State may properly bear a large part of such extraordinary outlay. How much of the expenditure required may be fairly expected to be met out of Municipal resources, is a question that can be settled only after obtaining an approximate idea of its total amount. The scheme may be completely thought out and matured once for all. It would be impossible even for the State to find all the money at once, but the expenditure may be spread over a number of years.

The general lines on which improvements could be usefully designed seem to be the following. The slums of the City, wherever they exist, should be first improved, by knocking down insanitary buildings, providing against over-crowding, bad drainage and otherwise defective sanitation. Proper quarters should be found for the surplus population removed from such localities; and such assistance as is possible and reasonably practical should be extended to poor people for building proper houses. A comprehensive scheme of proper drainage should be devised, not necessarily with a view to attain theoretical but unpractical perfection, but to meet the reasonable needs of the City.

"The above are only general directions, but it will be for the Committee which the Government has resolved to appoint to study the matter in all its various aspects both scientific and practical, and to devise a scheme for the consideration of Government, going into reasonable details. The President and members, who are named below, are requested to enter upon their work as early as they conveniently can and submit a detailed account of their proposals with as accurate an estimate of cost as they can. They should also indicate in what order and in which manner the scheme would in their opinion be best carried out."

The Committee has accordingly submitted a series of schemes on comprehensive lines, showing the improvements which should, in their opinion, be effected in the different parts of the City, and these schemes are now under the consideration of Government.

The scheme as a whole comprises the formation of new and the alteration of existing streets, the removal or alteration of insanitary buildings, the provision of proper drainage, and of open spaces for better ventilation and recreation, and the construction of sanitary dwellings for the poorer and working classes displaced in the course of the execution of the scheme.

As regards the execution of the scheme several alternatives present themselves. The work might be entrusted to any of the following agencies: the Deputy Commissioner and the District Officers, the City Municipality, a special officer appointed for the purpose, the Public Works Department, or a combination of any of these authorities. In each case, however, there are objections to the employment of these agencies whether severally or in combination. The Municipal staff is fully occupied in attending to the ordinary administration, whilst the demands on the leisure of the Commissioners cannot, in fairness, be substantially increased. Similar considerations apply with even greater force to the Deputy Commissioner and his Assistants. Again the Public Works Department would be capable of dealing with the engineering portion of the scheme. But this is not either the most difficult, or even the most important portion. An infinite number of administrative and economic problems involved in dealing with public and private rights on a large scale and the transfer of the population to more sanitary quarters, must be dealt with. Such a burden it would not be desirable to place on the shoulders of one man, in the shape of a special officer. Finally it is essential to enlist so far as may be the sympathy of those immediately concerned and of the public generally, and this end could scarcely be achieved by a purely official agency. At the same time efficient management and prompt executive action are essential, and it seems imperative therefore to appoint a special agency with a separate staff, at liberty to devote its entire energies to the task presented.

Under the circumstances, the Government of His Highness the Maharaja propose to follow the precedent set by the Government of Bombay and to constitute a small trust to be styled "The Board of Trustees for the Improvement of the City of Mysore" with special powers to administer the funds placed at its disposal, to acquire and handle property and generally to carry out the necessary works of improvement.

The necessary enabling powers are contained in the accompanying Draft Regulation, which (except as regards the financial and a few other provisions) follows more or less the lines of the Bombay Act IV of 1898.

Chapter I, (sections 1 and 2) Preliminary, requires no explanation.

Chapter II (sections 3 to 13) deals with the Constitution of the Board of Trustees, as well as with their proceedings and the duties of the Chairman. Section 4 provides for the representation of all the interests chiefly concerned, as far as this can be done on a small administrative body like the Board of Trustees.

Chapter III (sections 14 to 25) deals with the Duties and Powers of the Board. The Board's primary duty will be to elaborate the details of the comprehensive schemes submitted by the Improvement Committee from time to time, and to carry out the detailed schemes for improvement after they are sanctioned by Government. The Board may also submit additional schemes when necessary, and if funds permit. As regards the acquisition of lands and buildings (sections 22 to 25), the provisions of the Land Acquisition Regulation, 1894, have (with the few exceptions noted in Schedule A) been made applicable. For the prompter and more effective disposal of claims, etc., the Chairman of the Board will have the powers of a Deputy Commissioner under the Land Acquisition Regulation, just as the Chairman of the Corporation of Calcutta has under section 557 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1899. Section 25 explains the further matters to be considered in determining compensation, i.e., in addition to the matters set forth in section 23 [except sub-section (2)] of the Land Acquisition Regulation.

Chapter IV (sections 26 to 35) relates to Property and Finance. The lands* acquired for extensions of the City, and not yet disposed of to private parties, will vest in the Board at the outset. The powers of the Board in respect of acquiring and holding property, and of the application or disposal of property vested in or acquired by them, are mentioned in detail in section 27. The items constituting the Improvement Fund are referred to in section 28. One important respect in which the Draft Regulation differs from the Bombay Act is the fact that the Board of Trustees for the Mysore City will have no borrowing powers, and therefore no liability in regard to re-payment, but will merely administer the funds from time to time placed at their disposal by the Government and the Municipal Commission under section 28. In connection with the application of the Fund, it may be mentioned that the Board will have power, under section 29 (3), to advance loans for house-building purposes in suitable cases, in accordance with rules to be framed by Government. The provisions in regard to accounts and their audit are made simpler than in the Bombay Act.

Chapter V (sections 36 to 38) deals with the Officers and Servants of the Board, including those who may be lent to the Board by Government.

Chapter VI (section 39) is new. It treats of the circumstances in which the Dissolution of the Board may become necessary (that is, when the improvement schemes sanctioned for execution by them have been practically completed); and it provides for various incidental matters, such as the devolution of the assets and liabilities of the Board, the disposal and management of property, the completion of incomplete works, and the like.

Chapter VII (sections 40 to 48), regarding Rules and By-laws, Penalties, etc., embodies formal provisions which require no separate explanation. Attention may, however, be drawn to clause (e) of section 41 (1), which will enable the Board to prescribe suitable building regulations, and to section 47 under which house-building advances are recoverable as arrears of land revenue.
